

Heart Doctor Joins AdventHealth

Interventional cardiologist Dr. Ashraf Jmeian has joined AdventHealth Medical Group and will perform minimally invasive procedures at AdventHealth Fish Memorial to treat a variety of complex heart conditions.

As an AdventHealth Medical Group physician, he joins more than 400 health care providers, including 250 primary care physicians and specialists in Flagler, Lake and Volusia counties.

“Heart care is about more than just treating disease; it’s about empowering patients to take control of their health,” Jmeian said. “As an interventional cardiologist, I am committed to ensuring that each beat is as strong and healthy as possible, and I am honored to be part of a team that shares this commitment to providing our community with whole person care.”

Jmeian is a board-certified interventional cardiologist with additional board certification in internal medicine, cardiology, adult echocardiography and nuclear cardiology.

He earned his medical degree at the University of Jordan in Amman, Jordan. He completed his residency in internal medicine at Seton Hall University’s St. Michael Medical Center in New Jersey, going on to complete two fellowships in cardiology and interventional cardiology at New York Medical College.

He is the author of numerous research papers and is a sought-after speaker in the field, giving presentations at clinical events around the country.

His practice accepts most insurance plans and new patients ages 18 years and older.
